

Prime Minister reboots on corruption

Written by Administrator

Saturday, 08 November 2014 11:30

Its seldom that the appointment of a minister carries such a loud positive message. The elevation of Goa politician Manohar Parrikar from the chief ministership of the state to the union cabinet has helped boost the image of prime minister Narendra Modi, whose cabinet has been targeted for being short in talent. The 58-year-old IIT graduate comes with loads of positive vibes having established himself as an efficient administrator with effective control over administrative machinery and also impeccable record of personal integrity. For detailed analysis, click here